How to get there: SANTIAGO - VIÑA DEL MAR 45 min.

Owing to its privileged coastline, Viña del Mar is one of Latin America's preferred tourist destinations.
Thanks to its excellent services and infrastructure, Viña del Mar has become one of the principal cities of South America to host congresses of up to 1000 participants, relying on 2500 rooms which fall into the superior category of three, four and five-star hotels.
The main airport in Chile located in Santiago, capital city, is 45 minutes away from Viña del Mar and both cities are connected by a fast and modern highway.

Chile in 5 zones

The country divides itself into five distinct geographic and climatic zones. The north, influenced by the presence of the Atacama Desert, the driest in the world; Santiago, Valparaíso and the Central Valleys, defined by its Mediterranean climate and its wine valleys; towards the south, the Lakes and Volcanoes region marvels with its exuberating beauty and pristine landscapes; in the far south, Patagonia and the Antarctic Territory and finally the Oceanic Islands, highlighting Rapa Nui and Robinson Crusoe, characterized by their local tradition and marine diversity.
